Every individual and family goes through a number of changes. These changes can potentially cause emotional or behavioral problems in adults and children which ultimately affects the entire family. TSI staff are trained to intervene and educate families regarding skills such as: conflict resolution, relationship skills, problem solving skills, communication skills, behavior management, anger management and social skills. The teaching of these skills are Behavioral Health Intervention Services. BHIS assists in reducing and eliminating the behaviors displayed. These services are provided through individual and family sessions.
